ARKHALLA

LLOYD R. ENOCH

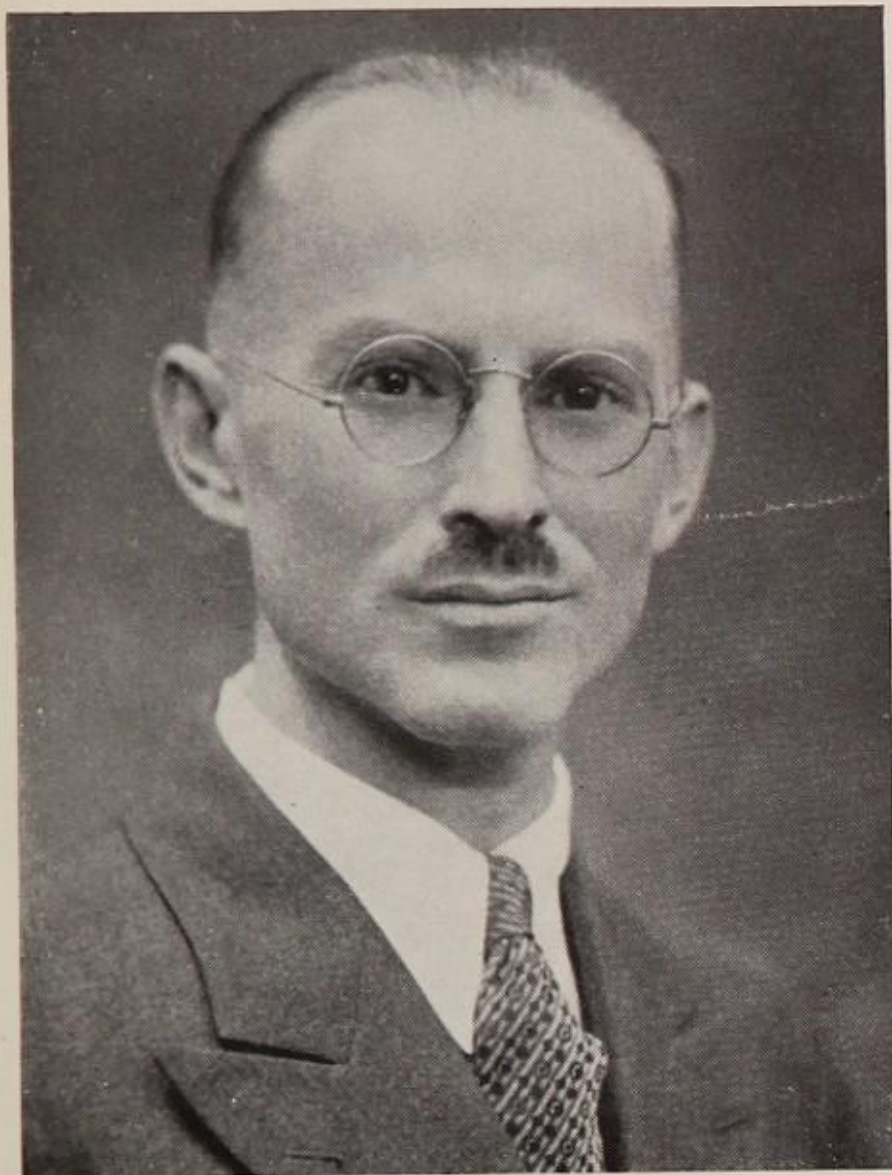

● For most of you, school days are ended. Does this mean no more class-rooms, study halls, teachers, assignments, and report days to worry about? But henceforth, the world at large will be your class-room. Experience will be your teacher and disciplinarian, much more so than has been the case in the past. Her assigned tasks you will find more difficult to accomplish. Her rewards for meritorious service are harder to get and far easier to lose. Her penalties for failing to recognize eternal truth are a good deal more bitter than any meted out in the schoolroom.

The greatest lessons you will learn will be from lives heroically lived around you. Learn now to seek such lives, and what is more, to rejoice in them, imitate them, and Tennyson's challenge "O loyal to the royal in thyself" will find fruition in happiness.

● You, the class of 1936 June, are about to leave us. My associations with you during the past three years have been most pleasant. As you leave us, some of you will enter higher institutions of learning, others will follow some vocation and ultimately all will take your places in a complex society. Remember that few persons get a place in the Hall of Fame, but all can be honorable citizens. There is a service to be rendered by each one of you; and, in order to serve well, you must constantly strive to improve.

We hope for you the best that life can give, the strength and courage to do the worthwhile things.

IVAN E NEWPHER

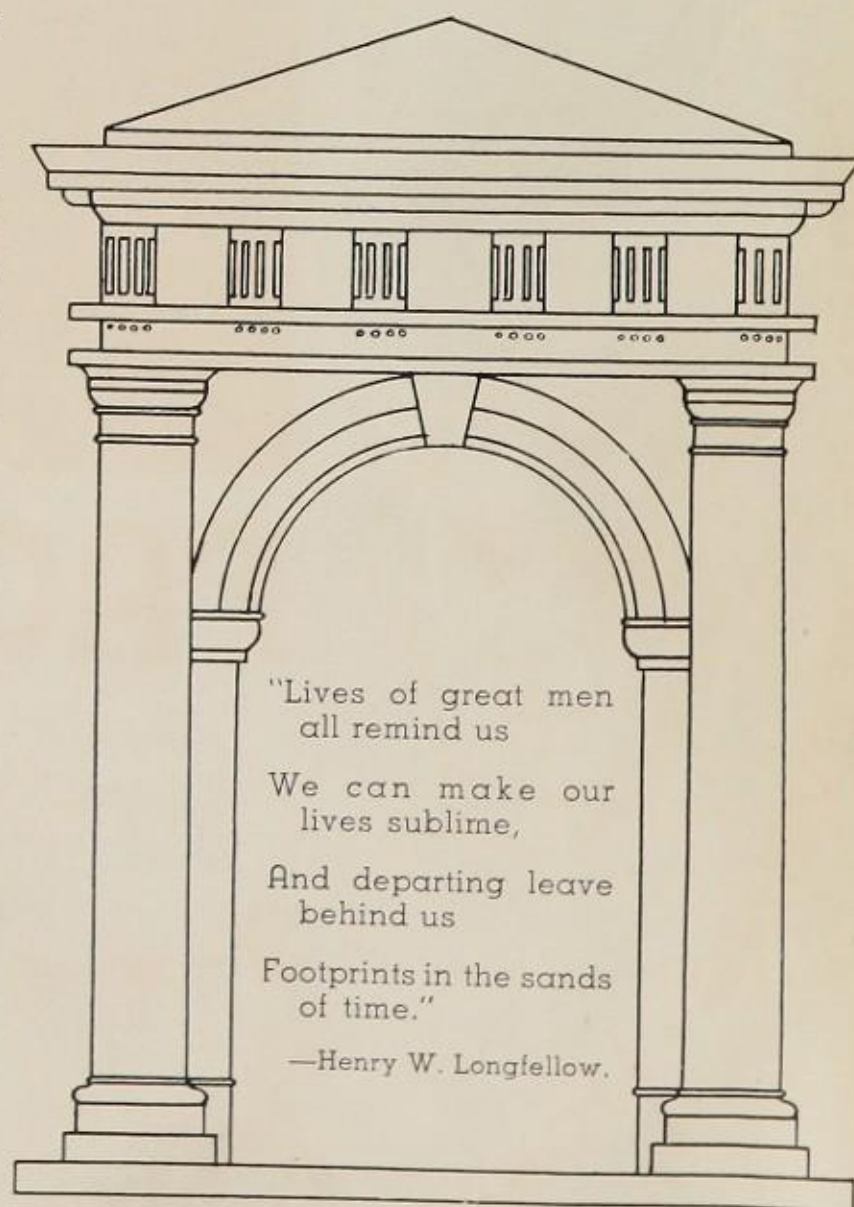

HALL OF FAME

● Built into the life of every American is the heritage founded upon the self-sacrifice, loyalty, and perseverance of the truly great men and women whom the Hall of Fame immortalizes for us.

When New York University established the Hall of Fame in 1900, it gave to our nation one of its sources of inspiration. We, the American people, are facing the same trials, struggles, and temptations that the men of the past have faced. However, in the lives of these great leaders we find encouragement and strength to strive ever onward. We realize, in the words of Longfellow, that "The heights by great men reached and kept were not attained by sudden flight, but they, while their companions slept, were toiling upward in the night."

● "Every American is a shareholder in the Hall of Fame." This should be foremost in the mind of every person. We must live up to the ideals advanced by the best minds and noblest spirits of each generation. The men and women represented in the Hall of Fame were pioneers who dedicated their lives to the building of the American democracy. Just so, we today are at the frontier, spurred on by the call of service which led the men of past centuries.

● With such encouragement and inspiration, we, the pioneers of the modern world, can conquer our lives and lay sound foundations for future ages.

"Lives of great men
all remind us

We can make our lives sublime,

And departing leave behind us

Footprints in the sands of time."

—Henry W. Longfellow.

DR. JOHN H. EISENHAUER, PRINCIPAL

● When we think of "Deeds of Great Men" as the object of dedication of this annual, we cannot refrain from projecting ourselves into the future to the time when the members of the class will be nearing old age. From this point it will be interesting to look back to the boys and girls who dedicated this book. What signs of great men and women were then observable?

Strange as it may seem, the characteristics of greatness in a given individual are seldom recognized in early life and often not until long after death. One reason for this is that great men and women usually live in advance of their age. People generally are skeptical of change. Jesus was crucified. Socrates was forced to drink the deadly hemlock. Galileo was sentenced to an indefinite term of imprisonment by the Inquisition. Lincoln was assassinated. And so we might continue the list of those who paid the extreme penalty.

In the small space allotted to us we must be content to say that while many great men did not pay the extreme penalty, their deeds were not fully appreciated during their generation. Beware of public opinion. It is with you today and against you tomorrow.

Great men seek the truth and follow the truth with a purpose. My final word to you is: "Do thou likewise."

WILLIAM L. FINK, Vice Principal

● "Deeds of great men!" This is the theme that you have chosen for your year-book. Fortunate indeed will be those of you who will reach the highest round of the ladder of fame. But your number will, of necessity, be small! The rest of us, however, need not despair. There is another group of immortals to which all of us may belong. I am thinking of the Hall of Fame of the Unsung Great. Here you will find the soldiers who suffered at Valley Forge, the pioneer mothers who helped to carve out an empire in the West, the men who gave themselves to Walter Reed's experiments. Their names we have forgotten; their deeds we shall never forget. The world needs illustrious leaders; just as truly does it require legions of worthy followers. In the latter pantheon, each of us may find a niche.

● "If I cannot do great things, I can do small things in a great way."

Most of us will never see our statues in a Hall of Fame. A position there is attained by great ability or an unusual combination of perseverance, ability, and favoring circumstance.

A pedestal is, moreover, an uncertain and isolated position. Many, having attained the top, have found it very slippery. So don't feel too disappointed if you cannot climb the dizzy height.

The main work of the world is, after all, done by those whose names are not blazoned abroad. Faithfulness, plodding perseverance in the face of discouragement and obstacles, attention to little duties keep this gay old world from going astray. If you cannot do great things, do small things in a great way—with enthusiasm, with courage, with a laugh.

PAGEANT

● "The World Grows Smaller" was the paradoxical title of an original pageant on the theme of communication presented by the class of June on June 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 1936.

The first episode, entitled "Man's Restricted World," had as its outstanding symbol The Torch. A small community in northwest Europe, threatened by a horde of invaders, formed the background for this episode. Games, two dances, and a drill furnished the activities.

"Man's Expanded World," with the ship as a symbol, was the title of the second episode. The story of Christopher Columbus and his search for a patron to finance his trip to the new world was here dramatized. Activity was provided by a Spanish Court Dance and a procession of choristers.

The third episode, "Man's United World," with the wireless and airplane as symbols, featured a fiesta in a Latin-American setting. An aviator as a messenger of good-will from another nation performed a great service to his hosts, thereby illustrating the great friendship existing between the peoples. An epilogue followed and showed the widely diversified elements out of which Man's United World would grow.

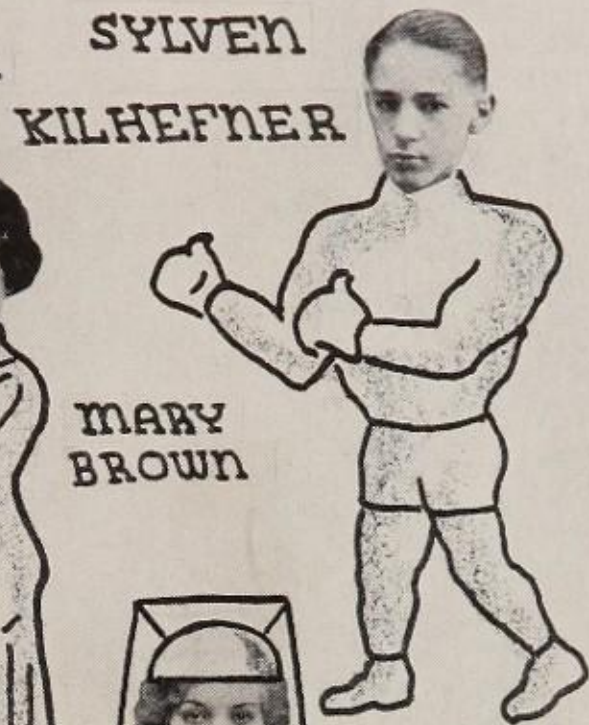

Each episode followed a definite plan: an orchestral number, a song by the pageant chorus, a word of introduction by the Spirit of Communication, a frieze on the inner stage, and then the episode itself.

We, the class of 1936 June, want to express our deepest gratification to Miss Runyeon, writer of the pageant, Mr. Fink, director of the pageant, and all faculty members, school officers, and students who assisted us in producing this, our graduating pageant, "The World Grows Smaller."

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF THE CLASS OF JUNE '36

● We, the class of June '36, began our high school career by storming the portals of the Castle on the Hill with a "bang." Many "Oh's and Ah's" were heard as the 1,181 greenies wandered aimlessly about the corridors for the first time.

One of the first matters taken care of after organization was the election of officers to transact the business of the June '36 class. After the votes were counted, Jack Hafer had been elected president; Jack Schultz, vice-president; Jean O'Brien, secretary; and Doris Landis, treasurer.

The Greenie Assembly proved to be one of the outstanding performances of the year. As our self-consciousness wore off, we began to participate in more school activities with whole-hearted enthusiasm.

In bright September, 1934, we returned with only about 900 students. At this rate, we began to doubt that we would be the largest class to graduate from Reading High. In 11B, the class officers were elected by a new method, a form of preferential voting. As a result, Jack Hafer again became president; Jean O'Brien, secretary; Doris Landis, treasurer; and Josephine Hessinger succeeded Jack Schultz, who had left school because of ill health, as vice-president.

Our class was honored by having 98 members receive Silver Scholarship pins. The officers and Executive Committee began to realize how much work was connected with the managing of a class. In conjunction with the Reading Teachers' Association, we sponsored the sale of tickets for the Clare Tree Major's Children Theatre performances. The first committees appointed by President Hafer were the Color, Insignia, Flower, and Motto Committees. The choosing of red and white as our class colors was an indication of what a brilliant record our class was to make.

Many students were honored the day the National Honor Society took 28 11A's (the full quota) into its organization.

By the end of the 11th grade, our efficient Executive Committee had transacted much of the class business.

On entering the Castle on the Hill in September, 1935, our forces were again reduced, this time to 754 students. The senior class officers elected were Jack Hafer, president; Josephine Hessinger, vice-president; Jean O'Brien, secretary; and Fern Houck, treasurer. Many of us developed headaches after it was announced the class dues were to be collected and jewelry could be ordered. Oh, how many pocketbooks positively groaned before graduation! In November, 81 students received Gold Scholarship pins, and 37 received Silver Scholarship pins. Once again, 28 were taken into the National Honor Society.

This time, our class members hadn't much time to rest between semesters but were swung right into the senior activities. The Arxalma staff worked; the Senior Assembly Committee worked. The Honor Society was increased with 31 seniors as new members. Graduation approached. Announcements and name cards were ordered. The Prom Orchestra Committee calmly created another sensation when Jimmie Burnish, the chairman, announced there would be two orchestras, one for each gymnasium. Then the Prom Decoration Committee got busy. With everyone having to be everywhere at one time, no one seemed to be accomplishing much. At least, so it seemed to the chairmen of the various committees.

When the class sponsors announced that Class Day and Senior Assembly would be held on May 8, Senior Prom on May 15, and the Class Trip up the Hudson on May 23, the pocketbooks really began to moan.

No rest for the weary! After a hectic few weeks in May, we were rushed into the pageant, which meant that graduation was here. Many students may not admit it, but we know they are just as sorry to leave the "Castle" as we are. All our activities, though at times they seemed tedious, were really performed with joy or else they could not have been accomplished so well; and we leave our Alma Mater, in our hearts a sorrow that cannot be expressed.

RAIDERS

The 1935 Reading High varsity grid team, playing but mediocre football, completed its ten-game schedule with three victories, two ties, and five defeats. Stevens Trade, Lancaster, and York fell victims to the Raiders' tactics although for the most part of the season the Red Knights seemed unable to stem the advances of their opponents, as they bowed to Bethlehem, Allentown, Ashland, Lebanon, and Easton. St. Clair and Pottsville held the locals to 6-6 and 0-0 ties, respectively.

Stevens Trade was the first opposing eleven to fall before the Knights. Dalessandro shone with two six-pointers, while Calabria accounted for one. Wright, of the Trade School, scored in the last quarter after a sensational run of 90 yards.

A highly polished Bethlehem machine over-ran the locals with a 19-0 score. This was followed by another defeat at the hands of the Allentown gridsters. In neither of these games were the Knights able to threaten their opponents.

Reading succeeded in opening the way for a comeback by trouncing the Lancaster eleven. The aerial attacks of Reading were successful in sending Calabria, Heater, and Kurowski over the final stripe.

Another temporary setback was handed the Raiders when they battled the Ashland Black Diamonds. Although they succeeded in holding their foes to a 7-7 tie at half-time, the Reading group was unable to continue, and they were over-run in the last half.

Coming as one of the biggest football upsets in the Eastern Pennsylvania Football Conference, the defeat of the powerful York aggregation at the hands of a revengeful Red Knight crew was just what the Reading team needed for inspiration. Although an 8-0 score was recorded against them at half-time, the locals returned in the second half to annex two touchdowns for a 12-8 victory.

Kurowski

Calabria

Lebanon repulsed Reading in a closely contested battle. This was followed by the game with St. Clair in which the teams battled to a deadlock. The game was strictly aerial, 28 forwards being attempted altogether.

The Easton jinx prevailed when Reading bowed to the invaders in a 20-0 contest. Prime, Easton's star fullback, scored all three touchdowns.

Pottsville rounded out the season's schedule for the Knights with a tussle on the muddy Pottsville field on Thanksgiving Day. Both fullbacks reverted to a punting duel, some exceptionally fine kicks being made considering the adverse weather conditions.

Although the season's percentage was not so high as it might have been, the team deserves a great deal of congratulation for the splendid stamina which it displayed. Coach Schweimler showed his ability by shaping his material, much of which was inexperienced, into a fairly smooth-clicking unit.

Beginning in September, 1936, the direction of the Reading eleven will be taken over by a new coach, Mr. Harold E. Rock, a former pupil of the noted Knute Rockne. He employs the Notre Dame system in his present coaching position and will doubtless institute such a standard for Reading High.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Red and Black cross country team, coached by Mr. Jacobs, achieved a perfect record with one of the best group of runners turned out by the Castle.

Eddie Marks, erstwhile descendant of Mercury, led the harriers in every meet and consistently finished first. Of the four meets, Eddie set new records for two: Birdsboro and the annual Y. M. C. A. run.

In the initial meet with Birdsboro, Reading's annual opponent, Marks set a new record and led the Knights to a 19-36 victory. The next four to finish were Hess, of Birdsboro, then Hiester, Jones, and Cleghorn, of Reading.

Mt. Carmel met a worse fate, being defeated by a perfect 15-40 score. Reading had the distinction of having eight of their men finish before any of the Mt. Carmel runners.

The Knights easily captured the Greater Reading cross-country run, with Marks finishing first. Marshall Hess, of Birdsboro, eluded the rest of the Reading pack to gain second position, while Jones, Hiester, and Cleghorn took the next three positions. The other schools represented in the meet were Reading Catholic High and Kutztown High.

The annual Y. M. C. A. run wound up the season. Eddie Marks cracked the previous record by six seconds in the time of 12:06. Jones and Captain Hiester finished second and third, respectively.

SOCCER

Reading High, entering its sixth season of soccer competition, duplicated the success of former years by turning out another victorious eleven. Led by Captain Clair Williams, the team waded through the season with a record of five victories, one defeat, and two scoreless ties.

Reading's opponents consisted of Wyomissing, Bethlehem, Mt. Penn, and Kutztown, each of whom staged two contests with the Knights. The Wyomissing Sunsets were the first to fall under the Red and Black barrage. Mt. Penn was then humbled by the scores of 2-1 and 7-1. A strong aggregation from Bethlehem proved Reading's equal and neither team scored in a duo of tilts. Kutztown humbled the Knights by a score of 2-0 for their only setback of the season. The local eleven returned to the pitch and avenged this defeat, taking the next game by a score of 3-0.

The Knights' success was due to the perfect response of every man on the team, but credit is especially due to John Tulley and Allen Sell, each of whom scored five goals.

Coach Dietrich has lost several veterans by graduation and will have to build up the newcomers to put out another winning team next season.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

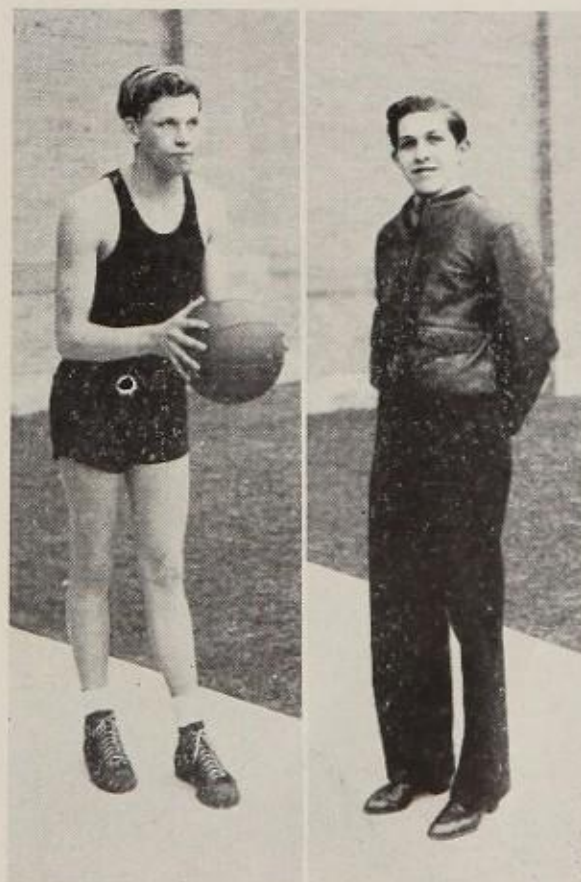

The 1935-36 Reading High basketball quintet, although not quite the equal of the teams of the past few years, finished the season in third place after holding the initial position for half the season. The Dietrich-coached cagers annexed ten of the fourteen league tilts, and a total of twelve of the eighteen scheduled games.

The Knights opened the season with the annual tussle with W. P. I. Returning from an easy victory, the Red and Black hoopsters were forced to tighten up in the next tilt and barely nosed out a smooth-working Pottsville aggregation by the score of 25-23. In the annual battle with the R. H. S. Alumni, the boys repeated their mistake of last year to surrender a 42-32 decision in favor of the ex-Knights.

After the brush with the Alumni team, the Knights returned to the court to take the Central Pennsylvania League opener against John Harris. The next two games were severe tests of the team's ability and they came through unscathed, conquering Steelton and Lebanon, the teams with whom they vied for first place during the season.

In the Steelton game, Coach Dietrich put in Hafer, Welsh, and Werner in order to have seasoned material to fill the places to be evacuated by Kurowski and Yousaitis in accordance with the mid-year ruling. In this contest, Reading piled up 40 points, with Seitzinger and Yousaitis tallying half that number. The Lebanon men proved stronger and held the Knights to a tie which they succeeded in breaking only in the second half.

The Knights went through the next five games in excellent form, humbling Lancaster, York, William Penn, Hershey, and John Harris for the second time. The

Seitzinger

Witman

York team put up the strongest fight, countering attack with attack but dropping the tilt finally by a score of 39-34. Werner and Seitzinger led the Red and Black scoring with eleven and ten points, respectively. At the end of the first half of the season the Knights had rolled up a perfect record of eight successive league victories.

Entering the second half, the home team, irreparably weakened by the loss of Kurowski and Yousaitis, dropped the next four games. Steelton, Lebanon, Lancaster, and York avenged their earlier defeats despite the gallant but vain defense of the Knights, who lost to Lancaster and York by margins of only three and four points.

The team came out of the slump to overwhelm William Penn by a 53-23 score. In the Allentown fray, the Raiders, bewildered and misled by the glass backboards, fought valiantly but lost this non-league game 33-24. Reading easily won the last battle against Hershey and closed the season marked by fair results.

JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

The Reading High Junior Varsity cage-men fared better than their varsity brothers in the 1935-36 campaign.

The team went through the season, winning twelve and dropping only two league tilts in the schedule of fourteen games. The Jayvees opened their season with two non-league victories over Pottsville and Evening High.

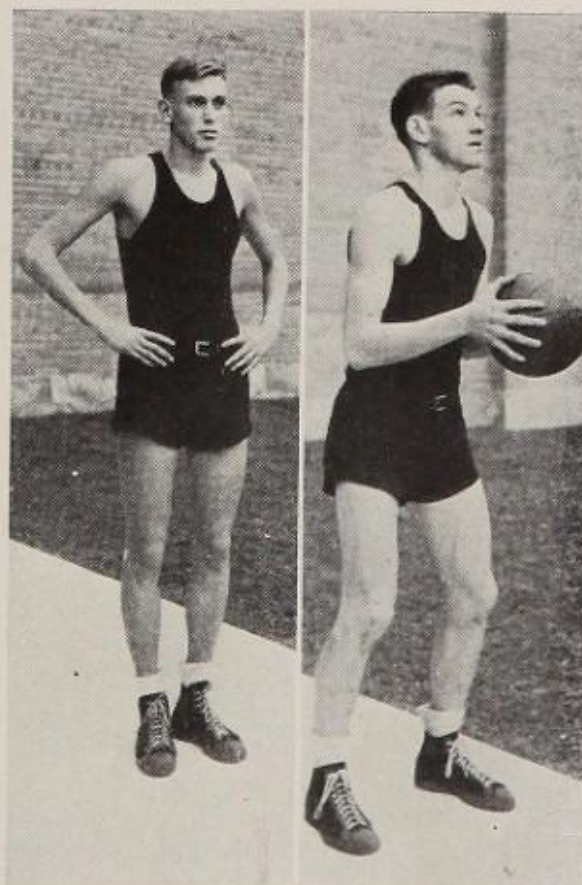

Following up these successes, the Juniors quickly downed John Harris, Steelton, Lebanon, and Lancaster to keep pace with the Varsity. York proved too strong and the Jayvee quintet bowed to them by a score of 27-24. They bounced back with another quartet of victories, annexing Hershey, and John Harris, Lebanon, and Lancaster for the second time.

The young Raiders met another defeat at the hands of a determined Steelton five by a score of 40-28. They avenged this defeat by drubbing York, the only other team to whom they had fallen, and rounded out the season with a victory over the Hershey Bars.

With this excellent record to recommend them, the Jayvees offer promising material for the varsity squad next year.

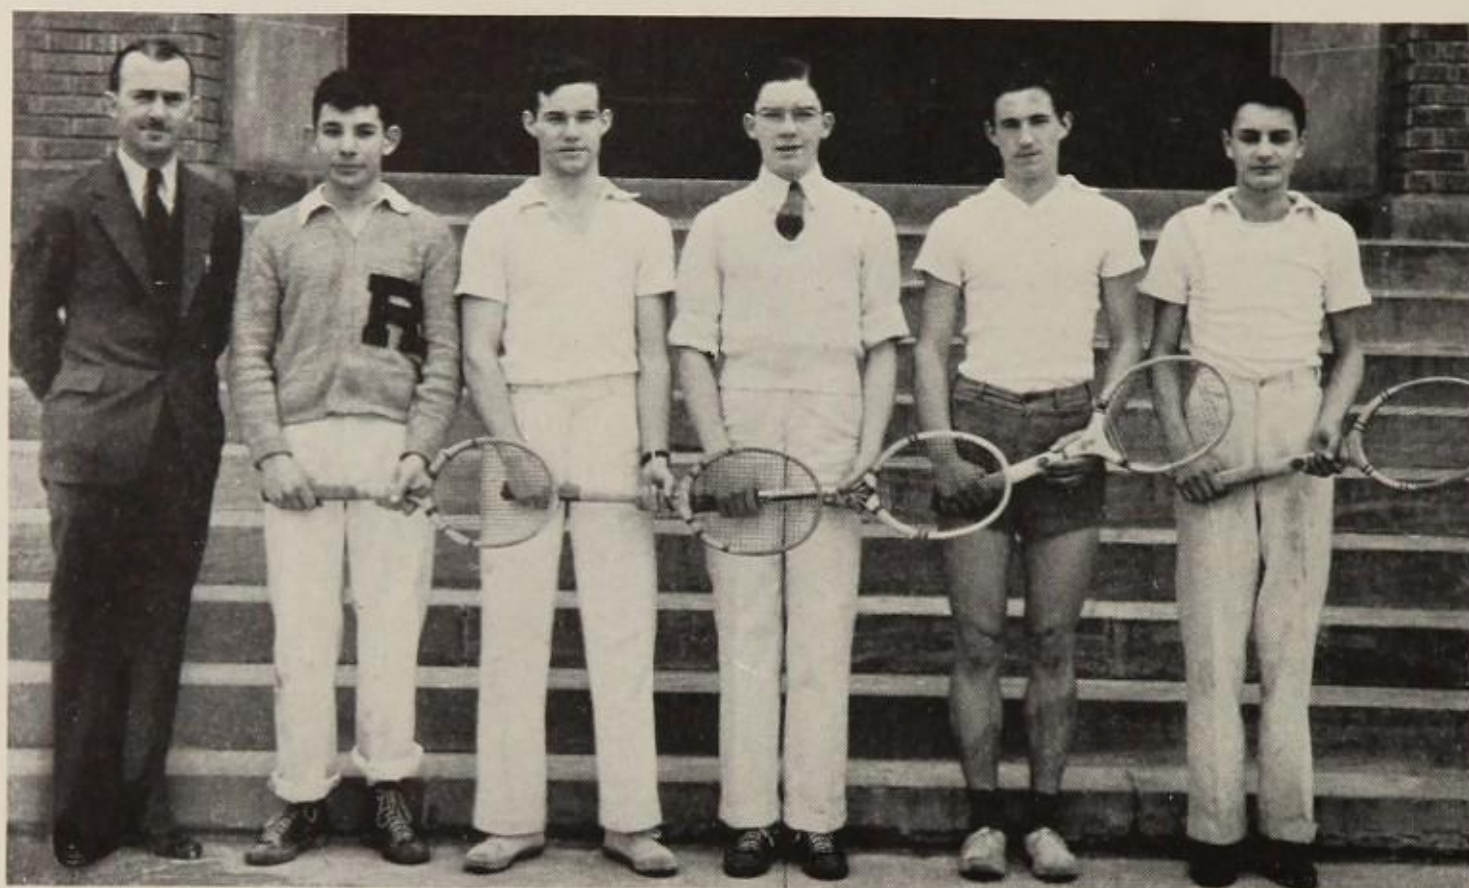

Summary

Reading vs. Pottsville	36-16

TENNIS

With the choice of the best from over sixty candidates for the 1936 Reading High tennis team, Coach Wisler hopes to finish the season with an even better rating than nine wins, two losses, and one tie, the record which his proteges hung up last year.

As a result of graduation, the team lost the services of Herb Schneider, Jack Updegrove, and Tommy Albert, three of last year's varsity squad.

The netmen had six scheduled matches, two frays each with Lebanon, Allentown Prep, and Palmerton. In the fall matches, the Knights played three non-scholastic games with local clubs. They split with the Reading Cricket Club and downed the A Z A's for a total of two victories and one defeat.

GOLF

Concluding a highly satisfactory season, the Reading High School golf squad can rest safely upon the laurels gained in the spring tournaments. The group, led by Marshall Palmer, captain, consisted of Everett Carter, Jack Darlington, Paul Grimes, Richard Palmer, Billy Eben, and Jack Mumma. It was this same squad that passed through the fall season with a record of five victories out of eight matches.

Coach Brucher was especially pleased with the showing made by Billy Eben. Billy won the Tyack trophy and the Reading Country Club championship, beating Earl Biehl, the former champion. While playing at the Reading Country Club, he also scored a 35 on the back nine, two under par.

Marshall Palmer and Jack Darlington qualified to represent the district in the state championship at State College on May 23.

BASEBALL

A heavy-hitting Reading High School nine found but little difficulty in successfully completing a 15-game schedule.

The Hill School was first to fall victim to the Knight combination. Shillington also succumbed. A highly-touted Bethlehem aggregation handed the Raiders their first setback by a score of 5-2.

Lebanon, Pottsville, Allentown, Shillington, Bethlehem, Easton, and Birdsboro gave way before the onslaught of the Red and Black nine. In a return game with the locals, Allentown managed to eke out a 4-3 victory

The Reading team next year will be considerably weakened by the loss of Sosh, Simcik, Rothenberger, Kurowski, Boyer, and Rohrbach. However, a great deal of promising material is to be found among the underclass men.

TRACK

Track, one of the most varied sports in which Reading High participates, has for the past several years been showing results worthy of the effort necessary to organize such a group. Coach Jacobs has expended a great deal of time and energy in working with the track men, and the past season has assured him that such sacrifice has been well repaid. Although the team members did not, in all cases, emerge triumphant, their relative showing did nothing to mar the records which Reading High has formerly established.

The outstanding performance of the season was Ed Wisner's javelin throwing at State College. He broke the former state record in finishing second with a toss of 181 feet.

The greatest disappointment of the season came with the first encounter on the Red Knights' schedule, namely, the contests at the Penn Relays. Reading High finished fifth in the mile relay, running the slow time of 3:43. The Raiders were led over the finish line by Lancaster, Altoona, William Penn, and Bethlehem in the order named.

TABLE TENNIS

Table tennis was played every Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of the week. The girls who signed up for the sport were divided into three groups. The group which played on Tuesday included Anna Weber, Marion Samar, Frances Stetson, and Ruth Joseph. In the Wednesday group were Ellen Thompson, Madeline Kercher, Margaret Hostetter, and Marion Goodman. The Thursday group included Frances Zycherening, Amy Walker, Carolyn Kissinger, and Elinor Einsel.

Both the ladder and elimination tournaments were used in table tennis. In the ladder tournament, the entire list of names was arranged in a column according to the ability of each girl. The player was then allowed to challenge the girl preceding her. The girls' names were arranged in brackets in the elimination tournament. A certain date was set for each player to meet her opponent. If the girl won, her name went into a smaller bracket, until finally, only two names were left in the last bracket. From these the champion was determined by a play-off. The champion was Ruth Joseph, and Amy Walker followed as a close runner-up.

The following are some scores which have been played in the table tennis league:

Scores of Sets	Players
21-21-20 8-5-21	Frances Zycherening vs. Margaret Hostetter
21-21 6-7	Ruth Joseph vs. Marian Samar
11-21-21 21-16-17	Anna Weber vs. Marian Samar
12-21-19 21-16-21	Elinor Einsel vs. Amy Walker
24-21 22-19	Ella Thompson vs. Madeline Kercher

BASKETBALL

The girls' 1935-1936 basketball season was a great success. Seventy-five girls turned out at the first call for aspiring basketeters. The present 10A class had the largest number of representatives on the floor.

A few practice games were played, and skill tests were given to determine the ability of each individual.

The Preliminary League was finally formed. It was made up of two leagues each composed of four teams. League I consisted of 12B, 11B-1, 10B-2, and 10B-4. League II was composed of 11B-2, 10B-1, 10B-3, and 10B-5. The 11B major league class team was selected from all the girls who had gone through the preliminary tests commendably. The judges were the manager, Theodora Kline, and the two 11B captains. The final team of 10B was chosen in the same manner.

The final standing of the teams in the Preliminary League was as follows:

League I
	Won	Lost
12B	3	0
11B-1	1	2
10B-2	1	2
10B-4	1	2
League II
	Won	Lost
11B-2	3	0
10B-3	2	1
10B-5	1	2
10B-1	0	3

The Major League opened after a few practices were held. It was composed of three teams, each representing a class in the school. Six games were played in the final contest. Each team had a chance to play the other twice. All the groups were under the efficient supervision of Miss McHose. They were well organized and exhibited a fine spirit of co-operation.

During the Major League, Carolyn Yerger was the forward with the highest number of points to her credit. Ruth Hawman was a close second, and Eleanor Kline placed third. During the season, a foul-shooting contest was held of which Mary Walters was the winner. Eleanor Kline again showed her skill by placing a close second.

There were quite a few girls who did not qualify for the final teams and some who wished to learn the game of basketball. A special group was formed for them. These girls played the league teams at practices.

The total number of girls who received letters for the basketball season was thirty-six. The entire season was under the student management of Theodora Kline, who did much to make it a success.

BASEBALL

Baseball has become every bit as popular with the girl athletes as with the boys. A squad of fifty girls reported to the gymnasium at the spring call for baseball. The student manager was Jean Setley who had been elected at a meeting of the Girls' Athletic Association. Every girl needed an after-school sports card, properly signed. She was also compelled to have a record of the tuberculosis test which had been given in the fall.

The first practices were held indoors because of the cool weather and wet ground. However, the girls were impatient to get out-of-doors and to start playing real games on the athletic field.

Three class teams were formed from the eligible girls. The Preliminary League was then started in order to determine the ability of the individual players and to give the teams more practice.

The final testing took place when the Major League was formed. It was not possible to play many games in the final league because of the limited time. Each team was allowed to play the other only once.

VOLLEYBALL

Volleyball has always been a popular spring sport among the girls. The volleyball title is now held by the present eleventh grade class. However, there will be plenty of competition afforded them. A squad of approximately forty girls reported to the gym at the opening of the season. The tenth grade had the best turnout with enough players to form three teams. The other classes had only one team each. The entire season consisted of a preliminary and final league. Because of the shortness of time, each team played the others only twice in the preliminaries and once in the finals. Anna Oaks, of the class of June '37, was the student manager for the season.

In the preliminaries, the 10A-3 team played the 11A's. The final verdict was 58-20 in favor of the 11A's. In this game, Florence May piled up the highest number of points. Another interesting game was 10A-1 versus 10A-3. It was a close game, but the 10A-1's finally triumphed with a score of 39-36. The high scorer in this fray was Florence Celebucki.

SWIMMING

This has proved an entirely successful season for the aquatic antics of the fairer sex of Reading High. Swimming had been discontinued as a girls' sport for some time, but has now been taken up again with more pep and vigor than ever before.

Throughout the year, four series of lessons were given at the Y. W. C. A. every Tuesday afternoon at 4:30. All lessons were given under the direction of Miss McDowell with the help of the student manager, June Farrell.

The girls who signed up for the swimming season were divided into three groups, Beginner, Intermediate, and Advanced.

A major event of the swimming season was a Play Day in which all the girls took part. In this event, the senior girls were known as the Mermaids, and the junior girls were called the Water Babies.

The activities held at the Play Day were of great variety. The Water Babies gave a shallow water demonstration. The more experienced swimmers were featured in stunt and form diving, life saving, and relays. Water games, such as "Keep Away" and "Circle Duck," were also played by both the Mermaids and Water Babies. At the conclusion of the interesting program, a plunge period was held for all the members.

The leaders of the various activities were Mary Frye, June Farrell, Ruth Hawman, Estelle Shirey, Dorothy Horan, Margaret Hostetter, Kathryn Geib, Dorothy Castor, Jane Adams, Margaret Strunk, Shirley Walker. Swimming is a minor sport for which the girls receive small black felt "R's" if they earn the required number of points. The following girls had, up to April 27, 1936, received their athletic awards in swimming: Amy Walker, Betty Schaeffer, Fern Focht, June Farrell, Ruth Hawman, Kathryn Geib, Edith Sharman, Jane Shounder, Virginia Sharp, Miriam Shoemaker.

TENNIS

Tennis is a sport which has been recently introduced into the great variety of activities open to girls at Reading Senior High School. It has been eagerly adopted and ranks as one of the favorite pastimes of the after-school sports group. 1936 was one of the biggest and best tennis seasons at "The Castle on the Hill." A record squad of forty-one girls turned out for the sport. Practices were held to determine the exact ability of each girl. At the conclusion of the testing period, the girls were divided into two groups. The one group consisted of the better or more experienced players, while the other was termed the beginning group. In this way, all the players were afforded plenty of competition.

The girls interested in tennis practiced every Monday and Thursday of the week. The Reading High School and Hampden Park tennis courts were reserved on those two afternoons for that purpose.

The entire tennis season was under the student management of Winifred Reifsnyder. Later in the season, an elimination and a ladder tournament were held.
